Not illustrated. 1914 Excerpt: .For no one can truly and sincerely regret the loss and want of an unknown thing. God may communicate his common bounties to the graceless, but not the special Communications of himself. Self-Deceivers may talk of Darkness and light. But it is meerly their frames, not an humble access to God, not Gospel views of God in Christ. These, my Friend, are some of the marks I rank in the before mentioned class. Duly to consider them, may be usefull. Where discoverable, they ought to engage the mind with more incouragement, to seek the full assurance of Faith; which is to be obtained, by repeated acts of Faith in the manner aforesaid and thereby exercise Fellowship with God; or by such acts of Faith as lays hold of Christ under clearer Views of his mediatorial Glory, and the reflecting act of Assurance of one s being...
